

Reid Residence

Houston, TX

Small spaces and modest materials are used to their best advantage in this Houston area residence.

The clean and elegant style of this home is reflected in the landscape through the application of simple geometry in pools, terraces, walls, and planting beds. A beautiful red wall mirrors the use of bright primary colors within the house and draws the eye out into the landscape. At the base of the wall, water cascading from a stainless steel pipe adds sound and movement to the garden. In contrast, a still, deep blue reflecting pool occupies the center of the garden. Collectively, the red wall, the deep blue of the pool, and many soft layers of green in the landscape create a carefully arranged composition with cool and pure spaces to occupy and enjoy.
